Welcome and Announcements

Choral Introit "Thine Is The Glory" Handel

*Call to Worship

L: Christ is risen!

P: Christ is risen indeed!

L: This is the day that the Lord has made;

P: Let us rejoice and be glad in it.

L: Let us worship God!

*Hymn # 288 "Christ The Lord Is Risen Today"

*Prayer of confession (Unison)

Mighty God, by your power Christ is raised from death to rule this world in love. We confess that we have not believed in him, but fall into doubt and fear. Gladness has no home in our hearts, and gratitude is slight. Forgive our dread of dying, our hopelessness, and set us free for joy in the victory of Jesus Christ, who was dead but lives, and will put down every power to hurt or destroy, when your promised kingdom comes. Amen.

*Moment for Silent Confession

*Assurance of Pardon

Mighty God, you raised up Jesus from death to life. Give us such trust in your power that we may be glad through all our days, looking to that perfect day when we celebrate your victory with Christ the Lord, to whom be praise and glory. Amen.

First Church Facts

Did You Know.....

- The Declaration of the Company to establish our church was signed by 20 men, in Lynn, MA on March 10, 1640
- On June 12, 1640, the first boatload of settlers landed in North Sea Harbor at Conscience Point. There were 8 men, whose average age was 25, one young woman and a child.
- The first church building was located on the east by Old Town Road and north by the highway which is now known as Meetinghouse Lane, and the site is in the rear of Southampton Hospital.
- A rude thatched building, it served as not only for church and school, but for Court and Town meetings and for the training of companies organized for defense. For many years the expenses of the church were a part of every man's allotment.
- Early settlers for their time were well-educated. Men and women could read and write. There were common schools in each community. It was not unusual for their sons and grandsons to attend college.
- The two most important employees of each town were the preacher and the schoolmaster.
- The son of Southampton's first minister, Abraham Pierson, Jr., became the first president of Yale.
- When the first settlers were met by the Shinnecock natives, they were led southward over the trail that is now North Sea Road. Terms with the Indians were confirmed by a deed listing sixteen "coates" and sixty bushels of corn to be paid after the harvest of 1641. The colonists also promised to give the Shinnecoaks protection from their enemies and the right to hunt and fish on the plantation.
- The Native name for Long Island is Paumanack. The Dutch called the land, Lange Eylandt. The Shinnecoaks call the land on which the original colonists settled, Agawam.
- The first concern of the colonists after selecting the site of the village was the spring planting. Although the planting was late, with the help of the Shinnecock people, the settlers were given corn for their planting and shown how to fertilize with fish. Enough of the Summer was left for raising one crop of hay and oats and Indian corn.
- Church and state were one in the early days of the colony and the town meeting was the highest authority. It was at first called the General Court and was held four times per year.
- The Court enacted a code of laws founded on the laws of Moses, "being justly and unanimously consented unto as fundamentals by the colony of Southampton."
- All adult males were compelled to attend the Court or pay a fine.
- All freeholders might vote, that is, anyone who owned land, but only freemen could hold office. The freemen were selected by all the freeholders. They had to be at least twenty-one years old and had to be "of peaceable and honest conversation." Any man chosen who refused to accept was fined forty shillings.
- By the end of the first four years of the settlement, thirty to forty families were living in Southampton. Of the original company, only Edward Howell, Thomas and Job Sayre, Thomas Halsey, John Cooper and Josias Stanborough (who came in 1644) made permanent homes. The others dispersed to Southold, East Hampton, Flushing, or back to New England.
- Rev. Abraham Pierson was minister from 1640-1647. He was a man of strong faith and stern theology. He believed that only church members should be allowed to vote in the civil elections, while a majority of the Southampton men believed that every freeholder should have the privilege.
- After Southampton voted to join the Connecticut Colony and send delegates to the General Court in Hartford, Abraham Pierson, with a few adherents, left Long Island and went to Branford, CT, under the stricter New Haven colony.
- The Reverend Robert Fordham followed Abraham Pierson, becoming the second minister of Southampton in 1649. He preached at first in the old meeting house, built the second church, and received as "annual maintenance for the work of the Lord amongst us three score pounds (about $300)." He remained until his death in 1674.
- Eight years after the settlement at Olde Towne the Towne Street (now Main Street) was laid out and every householder was allotted a "home lott" of 3 acres with farm land and woodland in outlying districts. Here the settlers built substantial homes and in 1652 they built their second church.
